INTRODUCTION

Making Your Restoration Decision

At one point or another, we all come to the same choice: Should I restore this car?

And now, as the collector-car hobby has learned to treasure cars that have been lovingly cared for over decades, there is a new choice: Should I refurbish this car and preserve the gentle marks of decades? Or should I restore this car?

In the case of my Alfa Romeo Giulia Spider, I stumbled into a full restoration when I had originally intended to refurbish the car. The restoration is incredible, but it erased the decades of history I had with the car. At times, I’ve wondered if I did the wrong thing, but in the end, the car needed a full restoration to safely survive and give me and my children more decades of pleasure.

If you’re wondering whether to restore or refurbish your car, know that it is a personal choice. You cannot make a wrong choice if you end up happy with the final result.

If you need help making a decision, Donald Osborne’s thoughtful piece on p. 24 will help you navigate your next step.

Whether you plan to restore or refurbish your car, let this guide help you find the right shop and the right people to care for your car. Keeping a treasured old car on the road is a journey, and we’re glad to help you take your first steps.

Remember, most restorations — and refurbishments — are acts of love. They’re also an investment in motoring fun.

In the end, after all the decisions, waiting and check writing, you’ll have a car to love and enjoy for decades to come. — Keith Martin, Publisher, Sports Car Market

... but as long as you’re happy with the result, what does it matter?

A common thread among automotive enthusiasts throughout the past 100 years is to ask, “How will we ever restore the cars of today?”

The question is the result of a natural teleological process. As automotive technology rapidly improves — and in some sense is emblematic of our own progress — we wonder how any future generation might improve on our own age.

Pontificating on the restoration of future cars is a common pastime among collectors and restorers. We all wonder at some point if the cars that we love will be worthy of some future generation’s attention and care, mirroring the reverence that we feel for them.

The long history of restoring cars

Restoration of cars has a long history, dating back to shortly after the beginning of the automotive age. An early example involves Elwood Haynes, an automotive pioneer who tracked down his first car from the 1890s and later restored it as an advertising... piece — taking a few liberties on the way.

The post-World War II generation saw the growth of the collector-car hobby and industry, particularly as a generation of mostly men took their mechanical and machining experiences to automotive relics, often again with somewhat fanciful interpretations of originality and authenticity.

The collector-car world flowered in the 1970s, as auction houses and professional restorers rose to the challenge, filling the needs of both those who had little time or care to work on their own cars — or those who appreciated cars but did not have a mechanical bent.

Concurrent with the rise of professional restorers and brokers came an increased emphasis on research-based authenticity and originality. By the early 1980s, collectors often had multiple resources and standards to judge cars against an ideal derived from the best research possible.

By the 1990s, collecting and restoration of post-war American and European cars became a major force in the market, as collectors and restorers both aged and a new generation came to appreciate the cars of their youth.

Restoration culture went mainstream in the early 2000s, as a multitude of both reality shows and auctions began to feed television and computer screens with a constant drip of new shows and cars bought and sold.

A new world for old cars

Today, the restoration world looks much different than it did 20 years ago.

A new generation of craftspeople, some trained informally under old masters (who often had formal training) and a growing number of formally trained young professionals, have begun to take the place of an older generation of craftsmen who started working with many of the cars when they were young.

The new generation may not have the memories, but they are increasingly developing the skills necessary to keep old cars alive.

The Smog Era, roughly from 1973 to 1985, left a generation of cars with standard reliability and performance, as well as frequently byzantine repair procedures.

As the car-collecting market skips over those cars (with exceptions), the performance cars of the late 1980s and early 1990s require service and restoration.

A growing interest in Japanese Domestic Market cars shows one of the long-term trends of the collector-car market — funky and interesting cars will always have an audience.

Increasingly, the service and repair of components in the restoration market will adapt. Electronic technology in most cars was relatively simple even at the time they were constructed. Further, it was usually designed to be more robust than other electronics — and easily repairable. An older generation may not have those skills, but a soldering iron and a capacitor tester coupled with a basic knowledge of electronics can do wonders.

Recent advances in low-volume manufacturing will have the greatest impact on the industry. Additive manufacturing, such as 3-D printing, has yet to prove its full mettle. However, as the ability to draw and create one-off parts increases, so also will the application of those technologies to collector cars.

At their current level, these technologies are not yet ready to supplant traditional techniques, but it is likely they will flower during the next 20 years.

Restoration is fundamentally a human pursuit. The best restorers channel the hands of the people who built the cars they restore, and this will not change.

Around our shop, we often say that “If man built it, man can build it again,” a testament to the ability of humans to retrieve and rebuild the past.

In a recent “Unconventional Wisdom” column and a profile in Sports Car Market, I had the opportunity to reflect on restoration choices and how they affected two particular cars, as well as the market’s response to them.

The stories motivated Managing Editor Jim Pickering to ask me to further examine the situations in which an owner might consider restoring a car and what might be “tipping points” favoring or opposing such work.

It is, of course, as is so much in the collector-car world, ultimately an emotional decision. It was abundantly clear in the column which I wrote inspired by the recent sale at auction of a 1968 Volkswagen Beetle sedan for $33,000, including buyer’s premium. The VW had been restored to a spectacular — and correct — level, with stated bills in hand for $140,000.

There was an immense cry from the readers of a social-media post I made about the sale. Many of them misunderstood my reaction to the result. I praised it as a prime example of a restoration done for pure passion, without regard for financial return.

The original owner commissioned the restoration, and this particular Beetle was his very first car. So the work was approached with a single goal in mind — to re-create the feeling he had the day he picked up his new car.

A subsequent owner sold the car, and it’s not known what they paid for the car. Quite likely their investment in the VW was somewhat less than the original owner had paid for the restoration. So, was this a bad idea? An example of a (rich) fool being parted from his money?

Don’t restore a well-preserved car

If you read my SCM column, you already know where I stand, and I will get back to a resolution on this. However, let’s get to some of the overarching issues at hand. When is restoration the best choice? In making the decision, the first question should center on the physical condition and history of the car.

I have long advocated that the highest form of motor vehicle that exists is one that has always been used, loved and maintained in regular, reliable use. It may no longer possess the original paint finish as applied at the factory because of natural fading. The upholstery may have required some minor repair due to normal use or gentle aging.

All of the intervention the vehicle has seen has been done with respect to the quality, techniques and intent of the original builder and is in character with how the vehicle was built. This is in contrast to the “barn find” — a vehicle that has been abandoned, parked for an extended period but not prepared beforehand for long storage.

When the paint is flaking off in sheets, large areas of corrosion are visible, the soft trim has been a dining room for rodents and the mechanical parts are frozen solid, there can be little to “preserve” in order to bring the spirit and appeal of a particular car to a new audience.

There are a miniscule number of truly “preserved” cars — vehicles that were generally very costly when new and purchased...

by owners with the resources to carefully store them when they were no longer in regular use on the road. In recommissioning cars such as this, the work is painstaking, slow and expensive — generally much more so than in doing a complete restoration.

Refurbishment is not restoration

Obviously, a vehicle like this should never have its history erased with a restoration. So when should a car be restored and are there different levels of “restoration”? In my experience and in conversation through decades with restorers, I have come to the conclusion that there is only one level of restoration.

Anything short of removing, cleaning, examining, rebuilding or replacing each component as the original builder made it is not a “restoration.” It is a refurbishment — and for me there is nothing bad about the term. When I lovingly maintain a car in the manner I described above, it has undergone a continual program of refurbishment.

Only that which needed attention or repair for age or use has been touched and nothing else. The car has never been completely stripped and rebuilt. It has not been taken down to the bare metal — or fiberglass or carbon fiber — and repainted.

Another category that has arisen as car collecting matures is the older restoration. How do you approach a vehicle that has been the subject of restoration work — either partial or total — 10, 20, 30 years or more ago? In some cases, cars such as this are often mistaken for “original” cars, as they show a consistent level of aging.

It is certainly the case that restoration standards and techniques have come a long way in the past decade, so many of these cars can be excellent candidates for re-restoration in a more historically correct and sympathetic manner.

Coming back to the stories that inspired this piece, the contrast to the restored ’68 Beetle was a 1936 Bugatti Type 57 Ventoux coupe sold at auction a day after the VW.

Possessing impressive originality, the Bugatti retained all its original body panels and pieces, mechanical components and all interior number stampings everywhere, its original upholstery all present and in lovely condition — with the exception of the front seat covers, which had been replaced. However, the originals came with the car and could be lined and refitted if desired.

The car had been painted three times in its life — the last time about a decade ago — and still presented quite well. This was a car that would lose all of its historicity and character if it were to be blown apart for a restoration. It deserves to be carefully maintained as it has been for over 80 years.

In any situation, it is almost impossible to restore for profit. Any restoration and many refurbishments must be done out of duty or love. And, if the love is strong enough, the return will be immeasurable no matter how much cash is spent. The goal of a successful restoration is to bring a vivid representation of a particular past to the present. ■

Location: Tipp City, OH
Year founded: 1932
Website: www.macysgarage.com
Phone: 937.667.3014
Owner: Mark Macy
Number of employees: 10
Specialty: Triumph TR2 through TR6 exclusively
Significant awards: First perfect 100-point car in the 44-year history of the Triumph Register of America national meet with our own 1961 TR4. Our clients routinely win Best of Show and First in Class awards throughout the U.S. and Canada.
Number of cars restored annually: Eight full restorations — plus dozens of cars and components for maintenance and partial work
Square footage of shop: 11,000
Best/favorite restoration project: Most of our restorations are for clients with a strong emotional attachment to their TRs. It is especially rewarding to return these special cars and memories to their devoted owners.
Most challenging project: TS1LO, the first production TR2 and the most valuable Triumph in the world
They say: Repairing and restoring the Triumph TR2–TR6 models exclusively has allowed us to justify a large expenditure on special TR tools and equipment that would not be possible if we were attempting to work on everything that came to our door. We have also made a significant investment in new and used parts to support our shop projects. That means progress on our clients’ cars is never stalled while we wait for the UPS truck to arrive. When combined with our years of intimate TR experience, these factors allow us to complete TR2–TR6 restorations in less time and to a higher standard than anywhere else in North America.

Website: www.streetworksexotics.com
Phone: 262.547.0052
Owner: Matt Backhaus
Number of employees: 20
Specialty: Italian and European GT and Sports
Other work/specialties: Full-service restoration facility
Significant awards: Pebble Beach, Concorso Italiano, The Quail, Villa d’Este and countless other shows and concours events around the world
Number of cars restored annually: Four total restorations per year. We also perform numerous types of service, maintenance and repairs on a wide variety of classics
Square footage of shop: 30,000
Best/favorite restoration project: It may sound like a cliché, but our favorite projects really are the vehicles we are working on at any given time. We are currently preparing three cars for Monterey Car Week 2019. These include another StreetWorks DeTomaso Mangusta, a Lamborghini LP400S Series 1 Rame Colorado Countach, and a fabulous Lamborghini 400GT.
Most challenging project: Each restoration has its own set of unique challenges. For instance, we recently fabricated a new set of aluminum rear hatch doors for a DeTomaso Mangusta that is undergoing restoration at our facility. It is rewarding to rebuild and re-create parts for these classics using the same methods and techniques the original craftsmen did.
They say: For over 40 years, our shop has restored some of the rarest and most unique automobiles in the world, including the Iso Grifo A3L prototype, Bizzarrinis, Ferraris, Lamborghinis, Maseratis and other coachbuilt classics. Our shop is equipped to perform all restoration services in-house.

Square footage of shop: 18,000
Best/favorite restoration project: 1935 BMW 315 Barchetta Special — a barn find out of Belgium
Most challenging project: BMW M1 art project. Two BMW M1s were brought to us. One was in a major wreck, and the other in a fire. Half of each was salvageable. We were tasked with merging the two surviving halves and making one gorgeous specimen that would be mounted to the wall of our customer’s man cave.

They say: The Werk Shop has built an international reputation on our rich history of restoring classic BMWs. We’re honored to be recognized around the world for the care and quality of our work. With extensive experience in both pre- and post-war models, our client restorations have won numerous prestigious awards.

Restoring the world’s finest motorcars since 1990

“Our mission is simply to restore our customer’s cars to the highest possible standard. Our differentiator is an ability to pay unrelenting attention to every little detail, whilst keeping the bigger picture in view. We set out to restore each car as if every individual part was being judged; as if it were being graded by each component. Regardless of marque, the standard is the same – make it correct in every detail, down to the last nut and bolt. That’s what delivers an award-winning restoration”. — Jeff Snyder, Owner

Phone: 828.430.7431
Owner: Ken Coffey
Number of employees: Five
Specialty: Foreign and domestic automobiles
Other work/specialties: We offer panel forming, leadwork, paintwork, mechanical restoration and service. Concours to one-off custom builds.
Significant awards: Multiple First in Class and Best of Show winners, 2019 Amelia Award winner
Number of cars restored annually: Three major restorations a year, and we also do multiple service and repair jobs each year
Square footage of shop: 9,000
Best/favorite restoration project: Each story is special. The 1922 Buick 7-Passenger bought new has a story. The 1962 Lotus Super 95 bought in England — and then shipped to the U.S. in 1963 to stay with one person to this day has a story. Each car has a history, and to have the privilege to be a part of that is what makes these jobs special.
They say: We are passionate about the work and our dedication is to the timeless art of the automobile.

Specialty: Parts, service and restoration work for Mercedes-Benz
Other specialties: Late-model service work on Mercedes-Benz, BMW and Mini Cooper
Significant awards: The satisfied look on our customers’ faces when they first see their finished cars
Number of cars restored annually: Varies, as we work to meet our customers’ expectations, and that determines our quantity per year. It’s up to our customers.
Square footage of shop: 13,000
Best/favorite restoration project: They are all favorites — that’s why we are in the business!
Most challenging projects: A 1955 Mercedes-Benz 220 and a 1965 Mercedes-Benz 300SE cabriolet
They say: We sell a full line of Mercedes-Benz parts for cars from the 1950s through the 1980s. We do minor and major service work on most Mercedes. We also do restoration work, including paint, interior, mechanical — and other restoration work. We do work that is tailored to our customers’ needs and budgets. We also (locally) work on later-model Mercedes, BMW and Mini Coopers. We do all the computer diagnostics and work related to keeping your daily driver on the road.

RK Motors

Location: Charlotte, NC
Year founded: 2010
Website: www.rkmotors.com
Phone: 704.445.9105
Owner: Rob Kauffman
Number of employees: 25
Specialty: American muscle, classic cars, late-model performance cars and custom builds
Other work/specialties: OEM restoration, paint and body, general service and maintenance Significant awards: We don’t compete or build cars with the purpose of showing in mind (unless it’s a customer request). We have, however, had numerous customers place in shows like the Super Chevy Show, Mopar Nationals, Pontiac Nationals and a variety of other shows.
Number of cars restored annually: Eight to 10-plus cars (full resto/customs)
Square footage of shop: 50,000
Best/favorite restoration project: Everything!
We are car guys through and through. We love OEM restoration on classic American cars, but we equally enjoy wild customs, tributes, late models and so on. Some of the cooler cars we’ve built include the last Hemi car (1971 Charger), a wicked 1967 Mustang with a Coyote 5.0 and all the modern bits you’d ever want, a monstrous 1,000-hp Bel Air, twin-turbo Viper, and a beautiful Dart GTS. We also built a really special Bronco for a fallen U.S. Navy SEAL, Adam Brown. Check out “Operation Fearless” on our website.
Most challenging project: The 1991 Bronco: Operation Fearless. This was such a special, beyond-worthy cause for us. Our team poured their all into this one, and things definitely got emotional. There was added pressure for this one to be flawless.
A Reputation of Excellence that Endures

Since 1940, WPR has been a renowned leader in the world of automobile restoration. Our name has become synonymous with exquisite attention to detail and unsurpassed workmanship. WPR does not specialize in any particular make or model, but rather in exceeding our client’s expectations. With over 1000 cars restored since our inception - from Rolls Royce to Ford and everything in between - we are confident in our ability to provide you with an experience and exceptionally restored automobile that you will treasure.

Torque Classic Cars LLC

Location: West Palm Beach, FL (Centrally located 30 minutes north of Boca Raton, in between Palm Beach and Wellington)
Year founded: 2016
Website: www.torqueclassiccars.com
Phone: 561.333.1868
Owner of shop: Gordian Tork
Number of employees: 15
Specialty: European sport and luxury cars with an affinity to Mercedes-Benz and Jaguars; in particular 190SL, Pagodas, coupes and Jaguar E-types. Complete restorations all done in-house by our teams of artisans and craftsmen. We offer several different levels of restorations, all tailored to meet our customers’ expectations. Our Renaissance models take great cars and make them that much better, with unique upgrades for improved comfort and reliability.
Other work/specialties: In-house upholstery center with product support directly from the tannery. Certified in-house state-of-the-art Glasurit paint and body shop. Customer care and warranty programs. Climate-controlled storage facility.
Significant awards: Best of Show and concours winner at multiple events.
Number of cars restored yearly: Five
Square footage of shop: 31,560
Best/favorite restoration project: Jaguar Series 1 Renaissance currently in the works
Most challenging project: Jaguar Series 1 Renaissance currently in the works
They say: Gordian Tork realized that finding a competent, honest restoration company to restore and service his prized collector cars was no easy feat. So he took his passion and business entrepreneurship experience and created a restoration company focused on the customer experience.

White Post Restorations

Location: White Post, VA
Year founded: 1940
Website: www.whitepost.com
Phone: 540.837.1140
Owners: W.R. Thompson III and Billy Thompson IV
Number of employees: 15
Specialty: Concours restoration — all makes and models
Other work/specialties: Comprehensive in-house services include mechanical, paint/body, sheet-metal fabrication, woodworking, coachbuilding and upholstery. We also offer hydraulic brake sleeving and rebuilding.
Significant awards: Numerous concours d’elegance top class and show awards, including awards from Pebble Beach, Amelia Island, Hilton Head, St. Michaels and St. John’s (formerly Meadow Brook)
Number of cars restored annually: We typically have 10 to 15 restoration projects in progress at all times.
Square footage of shop: 44,000
Best/favorite restoration project: We have completed too many rare and significant cars to choose a single project
Most challenging project: It’s a tie between a 1934 Mercedes-Benz 500K Cabriolet A and a 1939 Stout Scarab. We sourced the 500K from Germany and completed a frame-off concours restoration. The Stout Scarab was one of the five made — and only three were known to still exist at the time of restoration. Nearly every component had to be fabricated in-house from limited patterns.
They say: Now in its fourth generation of family ownership, WPR is a renowned leader in the world of restoration. Our name has become synonymous with exquisite attention to detail and unsurpassed workmanship. Many of our employees have been with us for over 25 years. Clients from all over the world seek our services.
At Paragon Corvette Reproductions, you'll receive the finest quality 1953-96 Corvette parts in the industry. Our friendly, knowledgable staff will help you choose from our large inventory of new reproduction, N.O.S. and used original parts to serve all of your restoration needs. Sports & Collector Car Center

Location: Tempe, AZ
Year founded: 2007
Website: www.sccarcenter.com
Phone: 480.968.5000
Owners: Joe and Pat Ritz
Number of employees: Six
Specialty: Mechanical service, restoration and repair for sports, classic, European and American muscle cars
Other work/specialties: We are experts in multi-carbureted European, Classic and American muscle cars. Experts in engine repairs — 4-cylinder to V12 engines.
Square footage of shop: 10,000
Best/favorite restoration project: The next one
Most challenging project: 1954 Arnolt-Bristol or a 1958 Tojeiro — both complete engine rebuilds
They say: We have been in the industry for some 40 years. We focus on all levels of mechanical service, restoration and repair. We find that many full-on restoration shops do not or cannot do maintenance and rally prep due to the nature of their schedules. Our niche has been the ability to prep, repair and/or restore all things mechanical. We service and prep classic restored vehicles for rallies and shows. We have created great relationships over the years with exceptional painters, body guys and upholsterers, but our passion is the mechanicals — engines, transmissions, differentials, carburetion, tuning and suspension. We’re committed to the preservation of investment-grade automobiles.

The Werk Shop has been restoring both pre- and post-war BMW models for over 20 years, and is recognized as one of the premier restoration and preservation facilities in the world. Our client restorations have won numerous prestigious awards at Pebble Beach, Hilton Head, BMW CCA Oktoberfest and many other events.
The Best of the Best Award 2018

Only one champion tops this gathering of winners

In addition to Rétromobile, Paris is also the backdrop for one of the biggest automotive awards in the world. The Peninsula Classics Best of the Best Award, now in its fourth year, honors eight winning cars from around the globe, and in the end, only one is truly the best of the best.

The winner unveiled this year was a stunning 1937 Alfa Romeo 8C 2900B berlinetta that took home Best of Show honors at the 2018 Pebble Beach Concours d’Elegance. The Alfa is owned by David and Ginny Sydorick of Beverly Hills, CA, and was restored by RX Autoworks of North Vancouver, BC, CAN. A group of 26 judges composed of the biggest names in the automotive world selected the 8C. It now joins the ranks of previous Best of...
